Topic: Food Waste.

Tons of food is wasted in the world every day. What do we do? The fight against this problem is vox populi. Politicians and influential people preach on this issue and it only remains in words, at the same time that hunger around the world increases year by year.

Wasting food is a problem that ranges from the governmental to the personal, passing through the commercial and the family, the political and the cultural. In our immediate times we lose much more than economic resources when we throw away food that still has value...

Eat your food, design your poster.
